Report on Compliance

We have audited the Town of Hempstead, New York's compliance with the types of compliance requirements described in the Draft Part 43 of the New York State Codification of Rules and Regulations (NYCRR) that are direct and material to the New York State transportation assistance program tested for the year ended December 31, 2012. The program tested is identified in the summary of audit results section of the accompanying schedule of findings and questioned costs.

Management's Responsibility

Management is responsible for compliance with the requirements of laws, regulations, contracts and grants applicable to its New York State transportation assistance programs.

Auditors' Responsibility

Our responsibility is to express an opinion on compliance for the Town of Hempstead, New York's New York State transportation assistance program based on our audit of the types of compliance requirements referred to above. We conducted our audit of compliance in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America; the standards applicable to financial audits contained in Government Auditing Standards, issued by the Comptroller General of the United States; and Draft Part 43 of NYCRR. Those standards and Draft Part 43 require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether noncompliance with the types of compliance requirements referred to above that could have a direct and material effect on the New York State transportation assistance program tested occurred. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence about the Town of Hempstead, New York's compliance with those requirements and performing such other procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinion on compliance for the New York State transportation assistance program tested. However, our audit does not provide a legal determination on the Town of Hempstead, New York's compliance.

Opinion on Compliance

In our opinion, the Town of Hempstead, New York complied in all material respects, with the types of compliance requirements referred to above that are direct and material to its New York State transportation assistance program tested for the year ended December 31, 2012.

Report on Internal Control Over Compliance

Management of the Town of Hempstead, New York is responsible for establishing and maintaining effective internal control over compliance with the types of compliance requirements referred to above. In planning and performing our audit, we considered the Town of Hempstead, New York's internal control over compliance with the types of requirements that could have a direct and material effect on a New York State transportation assistance program, to determine the auditing procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, for the purpose of expressing an opinion on compliance for the New York State transportation assistance program and to test and report on internal control over compliance in accordance with Draft Part 43 of NYCRR, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of internal control over compliance. Accordingly, we do not express an opinion on the effectiveness of the Town of Hempstead, New York's internal control over compliance.

A deficiency in internal control over compliance exists when the design or operation of a control over compliance does not allow management or employees, in the normal course of performing their assigned functions, to prevent or detect and correct noncompliance with a type of compliance requirement of a New York State transportation assistance program on a timely basis. A material weakness in internal control over compliance is a deficiency, or combination of deficiencies, in internal control over compliance; such that there is a reasonable possibility that material noncompliance with a type of compliance requirement of a New York State transportation assistance program will not be prevented or detected and corrected, on a timely basis. A significant deficiency in internal control over compliance is a deficiency, or a combination of deficiencies, in internal control over compliance with a type of compliance requirement of a New York State transportation assistance program that is less severe than a material weakness in internal control over compliance, yet important enough to merit attention by those charged with governance.

Our consideration of internal control over compliance was for the limited purpose described in the first paragraph of this section and was not designed to identify all deficiencies in internal control over compliance that might be deficiencies, material weaknesses or significant deficiencies. We did not identify any deficiencies in internal control over compliance that we consider to be material weaknesses. However, material weaknesses may exist that have not been identified.
